

ABSTRACT

An airborne sonar collision avoidance system is disclosed. The system compensates for changes in temperature in real time to provide more accurate sonar detection. In addition, the sensors are arranged in a communications network that allows for the sensors to be programmed 5 at run time, thus providing the ability to relocate the sensors without having to pre-program the sensors before the sensors are installed onto a different location.